Professor Richard N. Juliani, Ph.D

Dr. Richard N. Juliani is a highly honored professor and author who taught sociology at Villanova University for 37 years until his retirement in 2011. His work as a researcher and historian has focused on the immigration and assimilation of Italians in America. He has written two award winning books: Building Little Italy: Philadelphia's Italians Before Mass Migration and Priest, Parish, People: Saving the Faith in Philadelphia's Little Italy. We look forward to his perspective on our Italian National Parish; how it was established to minister to the immigrant population and what it means for us today as we go forward.
